Read the passage then answer the questions below.

While you are asleep at night, many people are busy keeping our community safe and comfortable. Night workers do very important jobs, even though most of us do not see them. Cleaners work at night to take care of offices and shops when everything is quiet, making sure everything looks spotless in the morning. Road workers fix streets during the night, as there is little traffic.

Many drivers work at night too, delivering food from restaurants and newspapers so that everyone has what they need when they wake up. Long-distance truck drivers travel between cities, carrying essential items and goods. Taxi and ride-share drivers help passengers get to their late-night jobs. Pilots and bus drivers travel through the night to carry people to their destinations. Bakers start work while it is still dark, so we can enjoy fresh bread each morning. Not all news happens during the day! Some reporters work at night so we can know the latest stories when the sun rises. Doctors, nurses, and hospital staff take care of patients around the clock. Fires, accidents, and emergencies can happen at any hour, so brave firefighters, police officers, and ambulance workers are always ready.

While we sleep, all these night workers are making life better for everyone. Without their hard work, our mornings would not be as safe, clean, or happy. So let's remember to appreciate the people who help us through the night and thank them for making our world a better place, even while we sleep.

Read the passage then answer the questions below.

While you are asleep at night, many people are busy keeping our community safe and comfortable. Night workers do very important jobs, even though most of us do not see them. Cleaners work at night to take care of offices and shops when everything is quiet, making sure everything looks spotless in the morning. Road workers fix streets during the night, as there is little traffic.

Many drivers work at night too, delivering food from restaurants and newspapers so that everyone has what they need when they wake up. Long-distance truck drivers travel between cities, carrying essential items and goods. Taxi and ride-share drivers help passengers get to their late-night jobs. Pilots and bus drivers travel through the night to carry people to their destinations. Bakers start work while it is still dark, so we can enjoy fresh bread each morning. Not all news happens during the day! Some reporters work at night so we can know the latest stories when the sun rises. Doctors, nurses, and hospital staff take care of patients around the clock. Fires, accidents, and emergencies can happen at any hour, so brave firefighters, police officers, and ambulance workers are always ready.

While we sleep, all these night workers are making life better for everyone. Without their hard work, our mornings would not be as safe, clean, or happy. So let's remember to appreciate the people who help us through the night and thank them for making our world a better place, even while we sleep.
